What do we mean by "Decarbonising"?

Decarbonising is completely removing "carbon dioxide" that is produced by people when they use energy. This will be done by removing fossil fuels from electricity, heat, and transport in the Decarbonising Zone (DZ).

What is the Decarbonising Zone or "DZ"?

A DZ is an area that has been identified by a Local Authority as a key area for climate action. For example, South Dublin County Council has chosen Clondalkin.

In the DZ, a number of creative solutions will be provided to respond to local low carbon energy, greenhouse gas emissions, and climate needs. This will contribute to national climate action targets.

What are the National Climate Action Targets?

The Government has promised to reduce emissions by 51% by 2030 and to reach net-zero emissions no later than 2050.

What does the DZ mean for you?

We are all facing a big challenge, and the actions for the DZ plan will affect your daily lives. The Clondalkin community has a unique opportunity to lead the way in reducing emissions and taking climate action. You can have a part in creating a livable, safe and healthy community.

Have your say and take the survey!

As a vital member of this vibrant community, your input and ideas are absolutely crucial. We want to know how you use energy and travel around your area, as well as uncover the challenges and opportunities you face when it comes to improving Clondalkin and reducing your carbon footprint.
